AWAKENING OF INTEREST IN MILITIA

Necessity For Additional Companies in West Florida—
Pensacola in Line

There has been a gratifying awakening of interest in military matters throughout the state during the past two weeks. Quite a number of letters of inquiry governing the formation and acceptance of military companies have been received at the Adjutant General's office, among others being those from Ponce de Leon, Crawfordville, Graceville, Sanford, Vernon, Bradenton, Pensacola, Mayo, Dunedin, Miami, Jacksonville, Blountstown, DeFuniak Springs, Noma, and Tampa. Under the rule which has been followed, applications for authority to organize new companies are required to be made in the form of a petition addressed to the governor and sent through the office of the adjutant general, signed by the requisite number of men who are eligible for militia duty; the minimum being, as prescribed by law, forty-five men, the maximum strength of an infantry company being sixty-five enlisted men and three officers. Some of the applications now pending have fallen short of the required number of men, and an opportunity will be given such applicants to secure additional signers to their petitions. It is not deemed advisable to authorize the formation of military organizations in communities so small that in all probability difficulty would be experienced in maintaining an effective organization by keeping up the membership to the prescribed number.

Authorized Strength.

As may be well known, the authorized strength of the state's military force is two regiments of infantry, and a battalion of artillery, each infantry regiment comprising twelve companies. The Second Infantry is in the peninsula portion of the state, and this regiment at present has its full quota of companies. The First Infantry is located in the northern and western section of the state and in it there are at present three vacancies, caused by the disbandment of two companies at Pensacola and one at Tallahassee. There appears to be necessity for additional companies of infantry in the western part of the state, as there are at present only two military organizations west of Madison, one located at Apalachicola and one at Marianna. For this reason the applications of Pensacola, DeFuniak Springs and other West Florida towns are among those which are likely to receive the most favorable consideration of the governor at this time.

Notice has been received of the formation of a company at Jacksonville, and if upon the receipt of its formal application for admission it is found that this organization has met all requirements, there is no doubt of its acceptance. This will give the city of Jacksonville three infantry companies and a battery of artillery, and if secure for the troops the opportunity of having battalion formations for drills and parades, an advantage not now enjoyed at any other post in the state.

No Cavalry Allowed.

The application from Tampa comes from a body of young men who are desirous of organizing a troop of cavalry, but as no cavalry is included in the authorized strength of the State Troops, this proposition cannot be favorably acted upon, and the Tampa people have been notified accordingly. The failure of the law to include cavalry in the state's military force is, as well as in other states, developing the difficulty, if not impossibility of maintaining such organization on account of the expense involved in the maintenance of horses, which would have to fall upon the individual soldier—a burden which few are willing to bear.

The application from Miami was for permission to organize a battery of artillery. The artillery organization in the state is limited to a battalion of four units, which may be either batteries of field artillery or companies of coast artillery. There is now only one organization in the state, the First Battery of Field Artillery at Jacksonville. Under the new national militia law it is required that the armament of the several arms of the organized militia shall correspond with that prescribed for like arms in the regular army. The equipment of a battery of field artillery consists of four 3-inch breech loading field rifles and the approximate cost of the armament for one battery, exclusive of uniforms and other equipment, is $21,000.00. As this armament can only be secured through the national appropriation for arming and equipping the militia, and as Florida's allotment of that appropriation amounts to only a little over nine thousand dollars a year, the impracticability of filling in this state, will be readily understood. But aside from this, it would not seem that any exigency now exists, or is likely soon to arise, to call for additional field artillery. On the other hand, the desire of the state authorities is to conform to the general scheme for national defense outlined by the war department, by encouraging the organization of companies of coast artillery at posts near the United States coast fortifications.
